The farmers that were in the city last weak from Spotsylvania, Caroline, and Louise counties complain greatly of the high waters caused by the recent rams and say that in a number of sections in their counties much damage has been caused by the water flooding the lower lands, and the upper lands from washouts. They say that a number of the farmers will have to replant corn, and that a good deal of it that has been already planted will have to be planted again on account of the first planting leving rotten from the west weather.

WHO CUT MELVILLE HUGHES? Idward Draper, the Colored Youth Charged With Doing It, Acquitted. The continued case of Edward Draper (colored), charged with feloniously cutting Melville Hughes, with intent to kill, was called in the Police Court again yesterday morning. Mr. Hughes, while much better and able to walk across the floor of his room, was not able to appear in court. Mr. Edgar Allan appeared as counsel for Draper, and not having been engaged when the former partial examination was held, the same was repeated for his benefit. The only witnesses examined were Magruder Burke and Theodore Nugent, who were with Hughes at the time he was stabbed. Their evidence was substantially the same as when they were examined before. They said that they were walking up Broad street about 1 o'clock on the night of the 21st of April. and had just passed the southwest corner of Fourth street, when they met a bright mulatto man, who had on a light hat, coming from the opposite direction. The negro passed between Hughes and Burke, striking against Hughes, knocking him around. Hughes asked the negro what he meant, and advanced towards him. The negro replied, "I mean that"; and as he (the negro) turned and started down the street he said : "I have fixed you." Hughes walked a few steps, then cried out, "My God! I'm cut— I am done for," and fell to the pavement. Nugent pursued the negro, but he succeeded in making his escape. Burke remained with Hughes until the arrival of the police, when Hughes was placed in a hack and taken home. There were several witnesses for the defence, by which they proposed to prove that Draper was at a ball at the skating-rink, on Broad street, on the night of the cutting and remained there until after 2 o'clock, when he left and escorted a girl to her home, on the corner of Seventh and Marshall streets, and that ome with him. Justice Richardson said it was useless to introduce these witnesses, he being fully satisfied that Draper was perfectly inocent of the crime. The accused was therefore discharged. The question now arises, Who cut Melville Hughes? Travellers' Protective Association A meeting of the Travellers' Protective Association was held last night at the St. James Hotel. A large num-
